Alpacas In America

•by Howard Epstein

Recently, my wife Nicky Epstein, a knit-wear designer and author, was teaching a series of knitting classes in Virginia and North Carolina. In one of her classes she met a charming lady, Linda Stark, who, along with her husband Jim, runs an alpaca farm in Dubuque, Iowa. Alpacas in Iowa? It peaked our interest in alpacas and I decided to learn more about them, and about the Starks' farm. Up until then the only thing I knew about alpacas came from the sweater department of Saks...visits to the zoo...and the occasional National Geographic article.

Alpaca Fact: Alpacas are members of the Camelid family which includes camels, guanacos, vicunas and two kinds of alpacas, the huacaya and the suri.

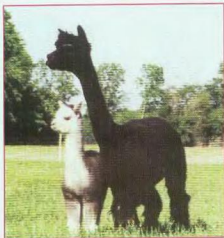

Linda and Jim (he's a veterinarian) Stark started their farm, Alpacas Of The Ark, in 1994 as a tax investment, but in time, came to love and nurture the special qualities of these passive, beautiful animals. As breeders and exhibitors of purebred sheep, they immediately appreciated the incredible alpaca fleece that comes in a wide variety of colors.

Alpaca Fact: Alpaca is one of the world's most luxurious natural fibers that is as soft as cashmere...warmer, lighter and stronger than wool...and is water resistant. Their colors range from white to brown to gray to black in a wide palette of shades.

The Starks' farm began with the purchase of two alpacas named Darjeeling and Moonlight Star and today their herd numbers about 20 animals. They prefer to concentrate on quality rather than quantity and their herd of huacayas are a testament to that philosophy. Their first detergent and dried. I wash my fleece; a small amount of fiber at a time and then spread it out on a screen to dry, being careful not to scrub or squeeze the fleece too much to avoid a dreadlock look. After the fleece has been washed, it is sent off to the spinning mill where it is made into yarn. A picked, cleaned fleece of about 3 pounds will yield approximately 15 skeins weighing 3 ounces per skein with 200 yards per skein. After the yarn is completed and sent to me, I wash the skeins and dry them to remove oils from the spinning process and then the yarn is ready for knitters to buy and start knitting."

Alpaca Fact: Alpacas were first imported into the United States in 1984 and are now being successfully raised here and throughout the world. There are approximately 46,000 registered alpacas (no information available on whether they are registered democrat, republican or independent) in the United States, but 99 percent of the approximately 3 million of them total are found in Peru, Bolivia and Chile.

Linda and Jim truly love their alpacas, call them by name and enjoy their distinctive personalities. When they built their new house, they instructed the architect that they must have a clear view of the paddock area. They love to watch the crias frolicking in the fields and listen to the music of the contented "humming" sounds that the herd makes. They know that alpacas are herd animals and live in family groups, frequently eating and sleeping together. Genesis and her mother Cricket have male crias born two days apart and the four of them constantly explore their world together. The Starks would never sell just a single alpaca to a customer because that animal would be cruelly lonely living all alone.

Linda and Jim have found their enterprise not only pleasurable, but also profitable. For instance...2-ply sport weight sells for $7 an ounce...sire fees range for between $1,500 and $3,500...and good quality females sell between $10,000 and $30,000. A unique aspect of the Alpacas Of The Ark farm is that every skein of yarn comes with an attached photograph and name of the animal (Tango, Butterfinger, Versario, Nettie, etc.) that the fleece and yarn came from. It's a kind of alpaca "up close and personal" experience.

Linda and Jim Stark welcome visitors to their farm and can be reached at (563) 583-6602 or alpacaark@juno.com. So, the next time you knit that luxurious alpaca scarf or sweater, give a thought to the noble animal that gave up its glorious fleece to you. It might be Nettie!

Working on first 2 strips only and keeping RSs facing at all times, cross first strip in front of second strip, then bring CO edge of second strip up in front of first strip and tuck it between the 2 strips and behind the first. Work first 7 sts of first strip and at the same time, catch in every other CO st of second strip. Next, tuck rem CO edge of first strip behind sts of second strip and work the next 7 sts, catching in every other CO st of first strip, thus completing knot. Work rem knots in the same manner, cont pat until 3 knots. P 1 row. Bind off in k. Sew knot edge to each end closing Scarf bottom. NS
